Saurashtra University – SSIP Cell

The university is dedicated to instruction, research, and extending knowledge to the public (public service). It is the policy of the university to carry out its scholarly work in an open and free atmosphere and to publish results obtained there from freely. Research done primarily in anticipation of profit is incompatible with the aims of the university. The university recognizes, however, that patentable inventions sometimes arise in the course of research conducted by its employees and students using university facilities. The authority of the university has determined that patenting and licensing of Inventions resulting from the work of university personnel, including students, is consistent with the purposes and mission of the university
